Mr. Jameson was a judge in Hart co., KY, born in the southeast part of Barren county, Ky. He was the second of eight sons and five daughters. Mr. Jameson left home at the age of 18 and worked for Michael Hall until the age of 21. He married Miss Burkes in 1829, born in Va., and raised in Greensburg, Green co., KY. William Mudd married secondly, Miss Withrowe, and removed to Cedar co., MO. for three years. Losing his wife, he returned to Kentucky about 1850. Mr. Jameson settled Blue Spring Grove, Hart co., KY. where he purchased a small farm. In 1844, he removed to Munfordville, KY and was engaged in the hotel business. With the death of his first wife, he taught school the following year and began his study of the law. He was sheriff for two years. In 1849 he resided at Bonneville on a 65 acre ranch which he built up to a 600 acre spread at Bacon Creek. When the Civil War ended he lost nine slaves and all his stock. Tenaciously, he hung on, rebuilt his fortune and was elected Justice for the for several terms before becoming a Judge in 1854. He held this position for eight years. In 1844 he was appointed a delagate to the Democratic Natinal Convention in Baltimore, MD. With the Civil War, he became a Union advocate and was commissioned a Colonel by the Governor of Kentucky to recruit and organize the 33rd KY Volunteer Infantry. He was Catholic.
